MARCH 11: 'RETHINKING RAPE' VIDEOTAPE PART OF VIOLENCE SERIES

The videotape "Rethinking Rape," which features a discussion between women and men who have personally been affected by rape, will be shown at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 11, in Kennedy Union Room 310 as part of the University of Dayton's "Violence: Breaking the Cycle" series.

Following the video, Patricia Johnson, associate professor of philosophy, will lead a discussion with audience members about acquaintance rape and the difficulties encountered by people going through the legal process of police investigation and court proceedings after a rape.

For media interviews, contact Pat Johnson at (513) 229-2819.

MARCH 11: PEACE SCULPTURE IN KENNEDY UNION PLAZA PART OF UD'S 'VIOLENCE: BREAKING THE CYCLE' SERIES

Two University of Dayton students will transform a bit of Kennedy Union Plaza on campus Wednesday, March 11, with an art installation meant to call attention to violence in America. Senior Kristen Weinstein of Long Island and junior Lucy Pabst of Chicago have designed a graveyard scene that incorporates headstones, the names and dates of people who have died of violence and faceless figures that represent non-violence and hope for the future.

The installation will be put in place beginning at about noon and it will remain in the campus plaza through April 10. Please call Pam Huber at 229-3241 to confirm the installation date and time.

The peace sculpture is part of a monthlong series of events that will focus on the many forms of violence occurring in American society. "Violence: Breaking the Cycle" will look at family violence, acquaintance rape, violence in the arts and homophobic violence. The events are part of UD's Distinguished Speaker series.

MARCH 12: UD WELLNESS SESSION LOOKS AT COPING WITH ANXIETY

Sweating palms. Pounding heart. Trembling knees.

Are these symptoms of simple anxiety or something of greater concern?

"Coping with Anxiety in an Anxious World," a session of the University of Dayton's Wellness Program, will be presented from 12:05 to 12:50 p.m. Thursday, March 12, in St. Mary Hall Room 422. Dave Lombard, Dayton-area clinical psychologist, will talk about why anxiety exists and effective ways to manage anxiety in our lives.

For media interviews, call Dave Lombard at (513) 435-0730.
